The grammar checker published in a prototype version is an electronic tool that provides feedback on extracts of the text where:

a. A deviation from the grammar rules is present
b. An incorrect grammar form is used
c. An incorrect word is used due to possible confusion about its meaning
d. A phrase is not used properly (wrong words are used)
e. An improper structural form is present
f. A specific linguistic form is not compatible with the text's style

The provided feedback helps the redactor of the text to detect possible errors and guides him during their rectification. Suffice it to say, this tool can't access the meaning of the text and cooperates with the redactor of the text, who decides about the definitive for of the text.
